
One-group model, q = 15, same 569 infants. A–C: each set's axes are matched to the primary axes on the strength and clustering coordinates every set shares. D: paired held-out difference within each set (positive favours one group), 95% intervals; held-out scores are not comparable across sets.